Getting Governance Right

Attend the Education Day and receive a free copy of CHF Canada's Getting Governance Right: good governance and principled leadership for housing co-ops. It's a 2020 Vision publication.

Some groups are under-represented at co-op events. We'd like to change that. Encourage everyone in your co-op to come to the workshops— young people, new Canadians, seniors or new members. Make our co-op movement stronger by inviting everyone to participate.

2020 Vision—securing our future NEW

Thom Armstrong

By 2020 more than 1,200 co-ops across Canada will not have any relationship with government. What's around the corner for housing co-ops when there's no more government oversight—and no more government subsidy?!

CHF BC and CHF Canada are working together on an exciting new project called 2020 Vision. It's about mapping a successful future for housing co-ops beyond their partnerships with government and keeping the co-op housing movement healthy and strong.

Join us for a look at the key role co-op boards and members will play to get ready for the future. We'll review the major challenges and the exciting opportunities that lie ahead.

You'll also hear about the tools we're developing for co-ops to make 2020 Vision a reality. We'll start by deciding what values are most important to us and turning them into a mission statement to lead us forward.

A question of ethics

Kerry Panter and Thom Armstrong

Co-op members expect their directors to live up to the highest standards of legal and ethical conduct. But what's the right standard? And what's the difference between directors' legal and ethical responsibilities?

We'll use case studies to discuss:

- what we mean by legal and ethical conduct
- the responsibilities all directors have to the co-op and its members
- how to build members' confidence in their elected leaders
- how to encourage a discussion about ethical behaviour in our co-ops
- how principled leadership helps build healthy communities

Join us for a look at what every director needs to know about leading by example in the co-op community.
